Regional Division No. 1 teachers won't be walking out

By Joseline Gionet
Staff Writer

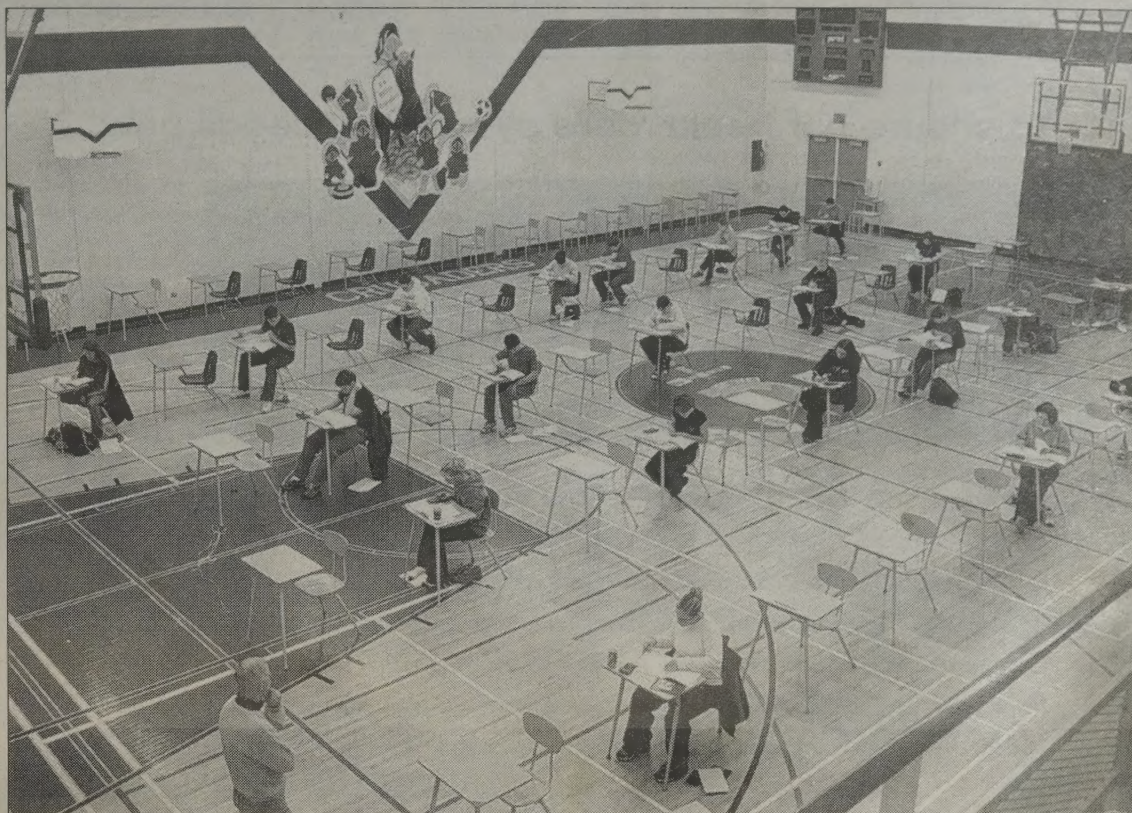

Feb. 4 is the date set for teachers across the province to walk out of class, but the teachers of St. Paul Regional Division No. 1 won't be following.

"Our next meeting with our school board is Feb. 11 and things have been amicable. There's nothing adversarial and we're working on and discussing the issues that are there," says Randy Proski, local teachers' union president.

On the local scene no large monetary issues have yet been discussed and by the time they get to those negotiations, there should be a good idea of what the other school boards in the province are offering.

In fact there are nine locals across the province ineligible to join in this year's proposed strike action. Only 12 locals have gone through all the necessary steps to be able to walk out on Feb. 4.

IT ALL COMES DOWN TO THIS -- For these F. G. Miller Grade 12 students, the provincial final exams they started writing last Friday are something they have been working toward since their first day of school a dozen years ago. Math 33 and Pure Math 30 students wrote Friday morning, while in the afternoon, Grade 10 and 11 students took over the gym to write English exams. Finals continue until tomorrow noon.

■ Up Front

All set to go for Elk Point Oilmen's 19th annual spiel

The last few weeks have been extra busy for a quartet of oil company workers in the Elk Point area. Leonard Gadowski of CNRL, Dallan Wandler of BMW, Bryce Lorenson of Gibsons and Terry Gusnowski of Anadarko have been involved in the time consuming task of planning and preparing for the Elk Point Oilmen's Association's 19th Annual Bonspiel.

Sunday night, three of the four gathered around a dining room table to sketch out the draw sheets for the 32-rink spiel, and to make sure all the details on their lengthy action plan had been taken care of.

The first rock will be thrown by Elk Point Mayor Lyle Frisby at noon Thursday to officially open the spiel, and all rinks will have at least one completed game to their credit by the time the rink lights go out that night around midnight.

At the end of each team's first game, each player will throw one additional rock. Players whose rocks end up in the four foot circle will qualify for a contest which is a new addition to the bonspiel this year. Graphica is sponsoring a "Draw to the Button" contest, and graphic artist Hans Rohner has created a very special button, at the home end of Sheet 2 for the qualifiers to draw to when the competition takes place just before the Saturday night banquet. There are "big bucks" up for grabs for the person who manages to park his rock closest to the button.

This is only one of the special events that will complement the four days of curling. A 'blind calcutta' will coincide with registration, there will be a Super Bowl ticket draw, and they are having a goat-free 'goat draw' in which for a small fee, participants buy the right to draw a playing card from a deck. When the whole deck is sold, one card is drawn from another deck, with the holder of the matching card taking home a jersey.

"This bonspiel is about fun," Bonspiel chairman Leonard Gadowski emphasizes, adding that curlers attend the event for the fun and camaraderie, but that there is also some very fine curling talent on hand.

The organizers feel that the 10 p.m. games on Friday night may well be some of the finest curling of the weekend, as the eight rinks still remaining in the "A" event out of the original 32 face off for the right to be in the semi-finals.

The final games of the weekend go at 4:30 p.m. Sunday afternoon, as the top eight teams compete for the Shamrock Valley Enterprises trophies in the "A" event, Tarsands trophies in the "B", BMW trophies in the "C" and B & R Eckels trophies in the "D" event.

However, they won't be the first trophy winners of the weekend. Another new sponsor this year, Canadian

Proud weekend coming up for the Elk Point Seniors

ELK POINT SENIORS RECREATION CENTRE is one of the busiest places in town.

It's hard to believe that it's already ten years since the Elk Point Seniors' Recreation Centre opened its doors for the first time, to replace the tired, outgrown confines of the Pioneer Circle Hall.

Since then it's been one of the busiest places in town, with a calendar crammed with not only events aimed at seniors - from floor curling and cribbage to wellness clinics, dinners and dances, but also events involving the community: weekly bingos, oil company meetings and seminars, election forums, wedding and funeral receptions.

First Night Festival entertainment and Community Choir concerts have packed the place to the doors on occasion.

There are osteoporosis clinics, business trade fairs, regular meetings of numerous local groups, and even church groups which find a home there from time to time.

The Seniors are celebrating the tenth anniversary of their centre this Sunday, with a potluck dinner beginning at 1 p.m., and everyone is welcome to join in.

St. Paul Regional Division teachers won't be walking

"The only way the province strike could affect our school system right now is if students from the surrounding areas are trying to come here for that length of time. We don't know if we have room for them," says Proskiw.

Money isn't the only issue teachers are discussing. Class issues are up in the air as well.

"Right now we have a proposal in front of the board to have specialized students counted as higher than one student in the pupil teacher ratio," says Proskiw.

Those specialized students, like those with special needs, require a lot more work from teachers than the average student.

Improving class conditions is only one of the three things the Alberta Teacher's Association has been working on though.

"We're also discussing salary levels and we're talking about a way to recruit and retain young teachers across this province," says Larry Booi, ATA president.

Booi agrees that most boards across the province do not have the money the teachers are asking for and that's why the action has been against the province mostly.

Although since a strike date has been set forth, Booi admits the province has not been more forthcoming with those funds.

"When we announced the Feb. 4 date it was because teachers were uncomfortable about disrupting diploma exams and it was a chance to give the government a chance to be part of the solution," says Booi.

On Feb. 4 St. Paul Regional Division's teachers will still be in the classrooms and Proskiw says he hopes the rest of the province will be at work as well.

AN IMPORTANT MESSAGE FOR FIREARM OWNERS IN BRITISH COLUMBIA AND ALBERTA

It's time to register your firearms

Look for your form in the mail!

Right now,
registration is FREE!

Your personalized and easy-to-complete firearm registration form is already on its way to you by mail if you hold a valid firearms licence or Firearms Acquisition Certificate (FAC). You must have your licence or FAC before you can register.

Owners who have already applied to register ALL their firearms do not have to complete the form.

Firearm registration is a legal responsibility for all firearm owners. Registration is a one-time endeavour. You can save the $18 fee if you apply to register your firearms by the deadline indicated on your form.

Acting now means you're sure to have your registration documents before you need them. You may also apply to register on-line. Visit www.cfc.gc.ca for details.

- Registration works towards improving public safety by recognizing owner accountability for the safe use and storage of firearms.
- Any restricted or prohibited firearms that you registered under the former law must be re-registered. There is no fee for re-registration.
- Registration enables police to trace firearms that may have been stolen, illegally imported, illegally manufactured, or bought on the black market.
- Insurance coverage and claims can be obtained or handled more easily for owners of registered firearms.
- By law, all firearms must be registered by the end of 2002.

Provincial round robins are here, with varying results

By Doug Bassett
Review Sports

This is a great time of the year. Not the weather mind you, brrr, but hockey, hockey hockey. The provincial round robins are here, and nothing can bring up the level of hockey better than the provincials.

A good start for the Atom Avalanche who defeated Kitscoty 7 to 0 in the first game of the home and home total point series, played at the Dome. Josh "Wheels" Weir and Ryan Marcenik with two each, Mike Marianchuk, Ian Jurak and Jordan "Krank" Krankowski with singles. Goaltender, Jerin Bezpalko getting the goose egg after he stoned them. Next Sunday the Avalanche travel to Kitscoty for the second game.

Then on a cold, cold Sunday the Avalanche traveled to Cold Lake losing, 7 to 4, but a good game all the same. Ian Jurak and Jordan "Krank" Krankowski with two each.

Tough, tough sledging for the Peewee Avalanche this weekend. First on Saturday in a penalty free game at home losing against the big team out of Macklin. Craig Dallaire and Brett Gadwa scoring, Ryan "Little M" Mac Donald and Richy MacKay assisting.

Then the biggest disappointment was on Sunday up in Lac La Biche in their first provincial round robin game, a few quick goals by Lac La Biche, a player kicked out for checking from behind, then everything snowballed, the Avalanche losing 14 to 5. Mitch Walker with two, "Little M" Ryan Mac Donald, Jeff Huseby, and Brett Younghans with singles. Assists coming from Kody Wickham, Royle Bristow and Craig Dallaire. There is still hope for the Avalanche, the second game of the two point series will be played at home, but it will be a tough uphill battle when you're down by 9 goals.

The news doesn't get any better, the Elk Point Dewberry Bantams not only lost two games, but also two players with broken arms this weekend, Scott Dallaire on Saturday, and Brolin Butz on Sunday. That makes three for the season.

They say you can't judge a book by its cover. The same can be said about the score in some hockey games. Even though they lost 7 to 0 against Wainwright on Saturday night it was still the best game they played this year. League leading Wainwright has yet to lose a game this year. A great game for defenseman Tyson Slywka, maybe his best of the season, and Kurt "the Wall" Kozicky who had one ring off the coconut early in the game, but shook it off and faced a ton of rubber.

Sunday's game in Bonnyville was much the same, Jesse Kozicky getting the only goal, Nicky Myshaniuk assisting. This coming week the Bantams start their provincial round robins going to Thorhild on Thursday night, and Thorhild coming here on Friday night for the second game. Come out and show your support for the boys.

Finally some good news, the Midget Girls Storm improved their record to 14 and 1 after Sunday's win over Hardisty 12 to 3 at the Dome. Eryl Anton Roberts with four, Kristyn Ballas and Brookelyn Blacklock with a hat tricks, and Karly Shankowski with two. Working hard in the corners, Kyrie Loughran with some great forechecking, Catherine Campbell with two assists, and her sister, goalie Kristin Campbell also assisting one. Not one point on the game sheet, but doing a terrific job on the point, and a big factor in the game all the same, Brett Hahn.

It was as cold as a heck outside on Saturday morning at 9 a.m. but the Micro Novice Tornadoes were hot inside the Dome. Last week, the Tornadoes were in St. Paul, this week St. Paul traveled to Elk Point, but the outcome was almost the same, the Tornadoes with another big win. Trevor Ballas, Jamison Wozniak, Logan Becker, Brandon Rainey all with the hat tricks. Tyson Moneta with a single, and scoring his first ever goal, Vital Guinney.

Elk Point Novice Hurricane played in Dewberry's tournament losing 6 to 4, scoring were Ethan Mohns, Dylan Loughran, Jordyn Wozniak and Brendan Bishop. Eric Kubinchak Hurricanes B.J. Bailey.

Once again, it's time for this week's K.A. Campbell trivia question. In 1947, he tinkered with a jeep engine and the front end of two cars to invent a machine that is now synonymous with good ice. Last week's answer. What N.H.L. team holds the longest winning streak? Philadelphia Flyers.

O.K., O. K., Yes I was there, and as my friends reminded me when I got home. What was the score on Saturday night? I forgot, oh yeah, Oilers 4 - Leafs 1. Roses are red, Violets are blue, they got 10, we only got 2.

review VIEWPOINTS

News on the street

Are you missing something?

Last Tuesday noon, as your editor was delivering the January 22 paper bundles, something on the sidewalk caught her eye. It looked strangely familiar, and a closer look determined it was very familiar indeed: the centre pages of a July 26, 1989 Lakeland Review. This is not your usual piece of discarded newsprint, so it was picked up and brought back to our office.

It's fun to look through a paper from that long ago, and to see how things have changed in that time.

The news of the day included coverage from the Whitney Lake Rodeo, with a photo of Wayne Henry and James Pinder team roping, and a cute little cowgirl who must be an equally cute teenager by now. Canada's sports poet, Frank Paylick was coming to the library's summer reading program, and a Heart Smart food category had been added to the Elk Point Fair.

It was Farm Safety Week, and the advertisers on those pages included several who are no longer operating in Elk Point today: Bochon's Esso Service, Gordie's Tire, Alberta Wheat Pool elevator, Franklin's Septic Service, East End Automotive.

This was back in the days when we carried a TV guide, and some of the programs of the day included "Romper Room" and "Mr. Dressup" for the youngsters, "Kate and Allie", "Night Court", "Tommy Hunter", "The Golden Girls", and "Who's the Boss?"

The issue congratulated two recent graduates, Tina Stafford from Lakeland College in Early Child Development and Sally Lynn Turner (Adomaitis) with a Bachelor of Science in Zoology from the University of Alberta.

But most interesting of all were the bumper crop of letters to the editor about an earlier letter regarding transients -- those employees of companies with head offices elsewhere who had the temerity to come to Elk Point and try to fit in. These letters came from longtime residents who said that some people welcome newcomers and asked how long one would have to remain here before you were no longer a transient, from Mayor Bruce Kleeberger, who questioned whether he, too, could be considered a transient, from the president of the Elk Point Oilmen's Association who was disheartened to think that all the hours volunteered by oil industry people in the community went unnoticed, but their money was still more than welcome at donation time. Yet another letter, by someone who had lived in the area only a dozen or so years, hinted that there were more issues than transients involved, and that the real problem in town was the management of the Ag Society.

Those letters, two by people who have since passed away, three by people who have moved on to other communities, sold a lot of papers, we recall, but we're really glad not to be even fleetingly considered transients any more and to have the Ag Society floating along nicely on an even keel and getting along with each other and the community. We'd definitely hesitate to call those the "Good Old Days."

If this is your paper and you'd like it back, call in at the Review office and we'll be happy to return your "souvenir" of 1989.

■ Nutrition Notes

Hand jive your way through Canada's Food Guide

By Linda Fox, RD
Elk Point Health Centre

Making nutritious choices is actually quite simple if some basic principles are kept in mind.

Canada's Food Guide to Healthy Living is the basis for healthy eating. It emphasizes whole grain products, vegetables and fruits, lower fat milk products, and smaller portions of lean meats or alternates.

Canada's Food Guide also provides guidelines on portion sizes and number of servings per day from each food group based on age, gender and activity level.

Number of servings is easy but, if you're like most people, portion sizes are not so easy. After all, we don't carry around measuring cups and spoons.

Perhaps we can learn from a simple approach based on a method used in an African country, where a way to teach without written materials is often needed. The hand teaching method (the Hand Jive) has been used to meet these needs.

This approach can be adapted as a simple and consistent way to judge portion sizes, even when you're eating in a restaurant. After all, you always have your hands with you, and they're always the same size. Big people have big hands, and little people have little hands. For this reason, you might even say that the Hand Jive is your own personal plan - it fits YOUR size.

Most adult fists are about the size of a cup. A Canada Food Guide example of two servings of grain products is one cup spaghetti or rice. By laying your fist next to a serving, you can determine if you do in fact have two servings, or is it really four or six servings? The fist can be used to measure other foods too, for example, one cup of salad as a serving of vegetables and fruits, one cup of baked beans as a serving of meat and alternates.

Your thumbs can also be used as a measuring tool. A piece of cheese the size of your two thumbs is equal to one serving of milk products. The tip of your thumb equals one teaspoon, for example, a serving of butter or margarine. From the knuckle to the tip of the thumb equals one tablespoon. Canada's food Guide lists two tablespoons of peanut butter as an example of one serving of meats and alternates. Using the Hand Jive, this would be equal in size to your two thumbs, from the knuckle to the tip.

One hand, cupped, will hold about 1/2 cup. Compare your cupped hand to the serving of vegetables, fruit or juice that you're about to eat. If one cupped handful of vegetables or fruit equals one serving, how many portions do you really have on your plate?

What is a meat portion? Canada's Food Guide tells you it's a two to three ounce portion. Using the Hand Jive, this equates to the size of one palm and the thickness of your little finger.

Use the Hand Jive to choose the appropriate portion sizes wherever you are. If you're eating out in a restaurant and the portions are too big, ask for a doggie bag to enjoy the rest at another meal.

For further information or a copy of Canada's Food Guide to Healthy Eating, ask your local Registered Dietitian.

Parenting is not easy!

By Deanna Easthope
FCSS Director

To all the parents out there, let me say a word or two about parenting. Yes, we have just finished the Christmas season, both traditional and Ukrainian, and now we have approached the January blahs and it seems like parents are under attack.

In the February 2002 edition of Reader's Digest on page 84, there is an article titled: "The Queen and Diana." In simple summary, it talks about how the Queen really failed in being a parent to Diana. "Neither patience nor the silent, steely-eyed displeasure Elizabeth had learned to deploy with withering effect made any impression on Diana. Yet by doing nothing, by allowing Diana to disregard the constraints of convention that keep the monarchy in place, the Queen unwittingly allowed the Princess to run out of control."

Then in the Friday, January 18, 2002 edition of the Edmonton Journal, front page of section C, the title, with pictures states "Royal Overreaction." "Counselling professionals in Edmonton say Prince Charles overreacted by sending 17-year-old Prince Harry to visit a rehabilitation clinic after Harry admitted smoking pot and drinking. "This, to me, is definitely an overreaction to what is a very normal situation of experimentation," says Murray Armstrong, a clinical social worker who does family and marital therapy at the Lousage Institute in Edmonton. "In fact, adolescents need to be able to break the rules -- hopefully not to the extent of getting in trouble with the law -- but that's how they find out who they are." "The decision by Charles to send Harry to the rehab clinic was probably motivated by his own protective instincts," Armstrong says. It's easy for parents who are fearful for their children's safety to react to these types of admissions in rigid, rule-bound ways. But a more reasoned approach, involving a lot of talking and listening, would have better results, he says.

Pauline Smale, director of community support programs at The Family Centre, agrees with Armstrong that Prince Charles overreacted. "What might have been a little more helpful, perhaps, for Harry, would be talking about it and really listening to him, and maintaining that relationship where you are approachable and you don't overreact to information," Smale says.

OK parents, I can imagine some of you are saying: You are _____ if you do and _____ if you don't. It does appear that way, doesn't it? Only the mistakes you and I make may not hit the headlines like those of the Royal Family. Irregardless, I think we can understand the feelings of the parents in the Royal Family. There is an old saying: "The kids teach us how to be parents." But, do we have to be attacked for trying our best? OK, OK, I am overreacting, you say. Then, all I have to do is listen and not overreact to information. Apparently what we do when we overreact is to push them into going underground so they don't have to face consequences. And parents, visits along the lines of Harry's to Featherstone would not be permitted at the Alberta Alcohol and Drug Abuse Commission's Henwood treatment centre for adults or at its Edmonton youth services facility. So we can't copy what Prince Charles did. However, the use of marijuana and alcohol among adolescents is common in Canada and it has risen. If you have any concerns with any of your children in our area, give AADAC a call at 645-6346.

It's that time of year again. We park our trucks, put down our wrenches, take off our coveralls and we'll meet up at the Elk Point Curling Rink.

People from all over Alberta and even into Saskatchewan converge on our small town.

Yes, you guessed it! It's time for the Elk Point Oilmen's 19th Annual Oilmen's Bonspiel, so bring your brooms and sliders and go to it.

This year with the curling club installing a new plant, it should be a trouble-free weekend for everyone. The ice should be just as challenging as it has always been.

Book your room and bring your broom and we'll see you at the rink.

At this time, I would like to take this opportunity to welcome all of the curlers and their fans to the 19th Annual Bonspiel.

I would like to also take this opportunity to thank all the great sponsors and all the people who take time out of their busy schedules to come here for a weekend of fun and laughs. Without you, it would not be possible to hold such an event and be successful in doing so.

Thanks again to all who participate and thanks to all who have volunteered their time and effort to getting this on the go again. Good luck, have a great weekend, and ABOVE ALL ELSE, HAVE A SAFE AND FUN-FILLED TIME.

Dave Cousins
President
Elk Point Oilmen's Assn.

community NEWS*Shriners mark 80 proud years of helping children

To Elk Point and district residents, the mention of "Shriners" conjures up an image of men in white suits and red fez, zipping around the Canada Day parade route in miniature cars. Elk Point's lone Shriner is Allan Berg, a member of the Al Shamal Shriners of Northern Alberta directors' staff. He reminds us that there is more to this organization than their presence in parades -- they are a group dedicated to helping children through their Shriners Hospitals for Children.

Prominent St. Albert businessman Doug Grant, newly elected Al Shamal president and CEO, told the annual meeting of Al Shamal that this is an extremely significant year for all Shriners across Canada and the US, in that 2002 marks the 80th anniversary of the opening of the first Shriners Hospitals for Children, in Shreveport, Louisiana in 1922. "We are proud of the fact," said Grant, "that the Shriners maintain the only children's hospital network in the entire world, with our 22 Shriners Hospitals for Children also being the only ones who provide the best medical care available at no cost whatsoever for any child up to the age of 18.

"We also proudly do that with no government funding whatsoever, depending instead on the phenomenal generosity of the general public through gifts, wills and endowments, plus assessments made on individual Shrine members. The operating budget for Shriners Hospitals this year is well over $2 million every day."

Grant said the Shriners also provide free transportation to any Shriners Hospital for all patients, as well as one parent. In the case of Edmonton and northern Alberta, he added, the transportation bill will be close to a quarter of a million dollars this year alone.

Al Shamal currently has 60 patient files. The Al Shamal Hospital Committee believes that could increase with the completion of an agreement with Alberta

RCMP Called Operation Red Coat/Red Fez, the over 2500 members of the force in Alberta have been provided with literature on Shriners Hospitals, as well as a toll-free 800 telephone number connected to the Shriners Hospital in Montreal.

Mounties, particularly in rural isolated areas, will be on the watch for children with burns, spinal cord injuries or orthopedic medical problems. They'll provide families of such children with a business card. On one side is listed the toll free number; the other side lists the 14 medical procedures done at Shriners Hospitals.

Further information on the Shriners or Shriners Hospitals for Children can be obtained by phoning the Al Shamal Shriners in Edmonton at (780) 482-6065, fax (780) 488-4728 or by writing them at 10434 - 122 Street, Edmonton, AB, T5N 1 M3

Prominent St. Albert businessman Doug Grant, owner of N. A. Power, will be president and CEO of the 850-member Al Shamal Shriners of Northern Alberta for 2002, succeeding Mel Lazarenko of St. Albert. Vice presidents are Terry Stonehouse and Bill Boone, also from St. Albert.

Action on Energy

A Progress Report from Alberta's Oil and Gas Industry

New program brings two sides together to solve problems.

The Alberta Energy and Utilities Board (EUB) recently introduced a new process, called Appropriate Dispute Resolution (ADR), which will bring landowners and oil and gas companies together to resolve issues.

After consulting with landowner groups, government and petroleum associations, the EUB identified several options for people to work through issues including facilitation and mediation. ADR results in win-win solutions for all involved.

Jeri Kerluke, Millarville, Alberta

If you had told that to Jeri Kerluke last year, she might have been skeptical. That's when a sour gas well became operational near her Millarville, Alberta farm.

"We worried about emissions and water contamination," said Kerluke. "We grow everything we eat, so that was a major concern."

When the company decided to drill more wells, Jeri and her family's concerns were magnified.

That's when both sides decided to try the EUB's ADR process.

"For us, ADR was a non-confrontational way to deal with issues that were becoming roadblocks," said Kerluke. "I was able to speak frankly and make my concerns known. As a result, I got things done that I needed to have done."

In Kerluke's specific situation, the company set up air and wind monitoring systems on her property.

Through the ADR process, Kerluke now has more open channels of communication with the company. "The ADR process is really one of the best ways individuals can make an impact," she says.

Since it was launched in January 2001, ADR has resolved 70% of company-landowner issues.

Landowners turn to water well program.

Petroleum industry funds replacement and restoration.

Since 1978 the petroleum industry, in partnership with government, the Farmer's Advocate and the Alberta Energy and Utilities Board, has funded a program to manage industry effects on water wells. This program covers the cost of restoring and replacing water wells affected by seismic or drilling activity.

"If someone has a concern they call us," says Dean Lien, the Farmer's Advocate and administrator of the Water Well Restoration or Replacement Program. "A geophysical inspector examines the site. We hold a committee meeting with the landowner, neutral community members and Alberta Environment. Then we compensate landowners if we find that damage has been caused by seismic or drilling activity."

A northern Alberta landowner recently received assistance from this program.

"We had a fantastic well," she says. After some seismic activity took place on her property, her well stopped working.

"We shouldn't have to worry about drilling a new well," she says. She then learned about the restoration and replacement program and contacted the Farmer's Advocate. "Their help got my well back to its original condition. Having this initiative is a good thing."

Through a set of recommended practices, the Canadian Association of Petroleum Producers encourages industry to carry out landowner water well testing before and after drilling or seismic activity.

In 2000, companies drilled 12,900 oil and gas wells and shot more than 15,000 kilometres of seismic work. During that time, the Farmer's Advocate reviewed 26 funding applications – 22 landowners received compensation. The number of applications has ranged from 15 to 25 requests per year since the program began.

Measuring air quality near the oil sands. Comprehensive study in Fort McMurray becomes model.

An air quality study in Fort McMurray, funded by the Alberta government and oil sands developers Suncor and Syncrude, will become a model for other communities around the province.

The comprehensive study found that air quality in the area next to Alberta's vast oil sands is good. Over an 18-month period, 300 volunteers wore personal air monitors; data was also gathered from indoor and outdoor air monitors, particulate collectors, blood and urine samples as well as other procedures.

"Fort McMurray is experiencing rapid industrial and population growth. It is reassuring to both new and longtime residents that the air quality continues to be good," says Guy Boutilier, local MLA and former chair of the Cabinet Committee on Climate Change.

No major differences were found in the health of Fort McMurray residents when compared to people in the control community of Lethbridge. Fort McMurray's air contaminants were low, often below the detection limit.

Patricia Pelton, chief executive officer of the Fort McMurray health authority, says, "The study provided excellent baseline data to compare future air quality. Now we'll be able to closely monitor any changes resulting from future growth."

New identity for Treasury Branch

Alberta Treasury Branch has a new corporate identity. They are now known as ATB Financial, the 'ATB' an acronym for Alberta Treasury Branch and 'Financial' describing what they do.

Research has told ATB that their old name did not adequately indicate what business they were in, which is to provide a broad range of financial services, from deposit accounts, loans and mortgages to GICs and mutual funds, to Albertans. Their new corporate identity has been introduced in line with their current business strategy to increase their share of the financial market.

However, only their trade name has changed, and both old and new corporate identities will be used for a while to ease the transition period until the public makes the association and becomes familiar with the new name.

Some larger centres will have new signage on their buildings almost immediately, however in communities such as Elk Point, the signs will still read 'Alberta Treasury Branch,' while window signage will be added, reading 'ATB Financial,' until all signs are gradually changed.

Last Monday, all the staff at Elk Point's ATB Financial were also sporting handsome blue shirts emblazoned with the new logo, to go with the new sign over their door and the bouquets of ATB Financial balloons on their desks, for the launch of the new identity.

All customer accounts, contracts, etc. will remain unchanged, because Alberta Treasury Branches remains the company's legal name. Credit and bank cards will be issued before the normal expiry date. There will be no changes to pre-authorized payments, payroll transfers or business services, or to the personalized service provided by ATB staff.

All customers will receive a brochure by mail to explain the changes in detail.

Alberta Treasury Branch started in 1938 with a single small branch in Rocky Mountain House, and has grown to serve more than half a million Albertans in 240 communities of all sizes, with 276 branches and agencies.

what's NEWS at the LIBRARY?

New books to curl up with on a cold winter day

By Daphne Schnurer
Librarian

Some great new reads this week:

Rare Vascular Plants of Alberta by Linda Kershaw. It includes many features to help both casual readers and professionals identify rare species. Many rare plants can be found in Alberta's wild and not-so-wild places.

Newest from W. E. B. Griffin - Under Fire takes you and his marine heroes to Korea in the biggest Corps novel yet. Lots of military action in this high quality history novel.

Another brilliant Cat Who... mystery from Lilian Jackson Braun - The Cat Who Went Up the Creek.

Genetically Engineered Food Changing the Nature of Nature - What you need to know to protect yourself, your family and our planet. Martin Teitel and Kimberley Wilson have cut through all the hype and misconceptions surrounding genetically engineered food and provided an indispensable primer for every family in America concerned with making wise dietary choices.

A wonderful collection of designs from well known illustrator Mary Engelbreit will inspire your creativity. This title captures warmth and whimsy in fun to make decorations for every room in your home as well as your outdoor spaces. These colorful projects will make your home sweet home more welcoming than ever.

For our teens: The Kingfisher Book of Mythology journeys across the globe, visiting people, the cultures and their vast imaginative array of mythical characters, animals, places and events.

Honey - fourth in a dazzling new series by

V. C. Andrews. Sky Horse, the first in the Mustang Mountain series for ages 8 to 12.

Heater safety tips

1. Clear a 'safe zone' around the heater, and ensure this area is free from furniture, including beds and cribs, pillows, bedding, clothes, curtains.

2. Use caution when using a heater near children or pets.

3. Avoid leaving an operating heater unattended.

4. Regular household extension cords should not be used with an electric heater. They may overload the cord.

Action plan for agriculture moving forward

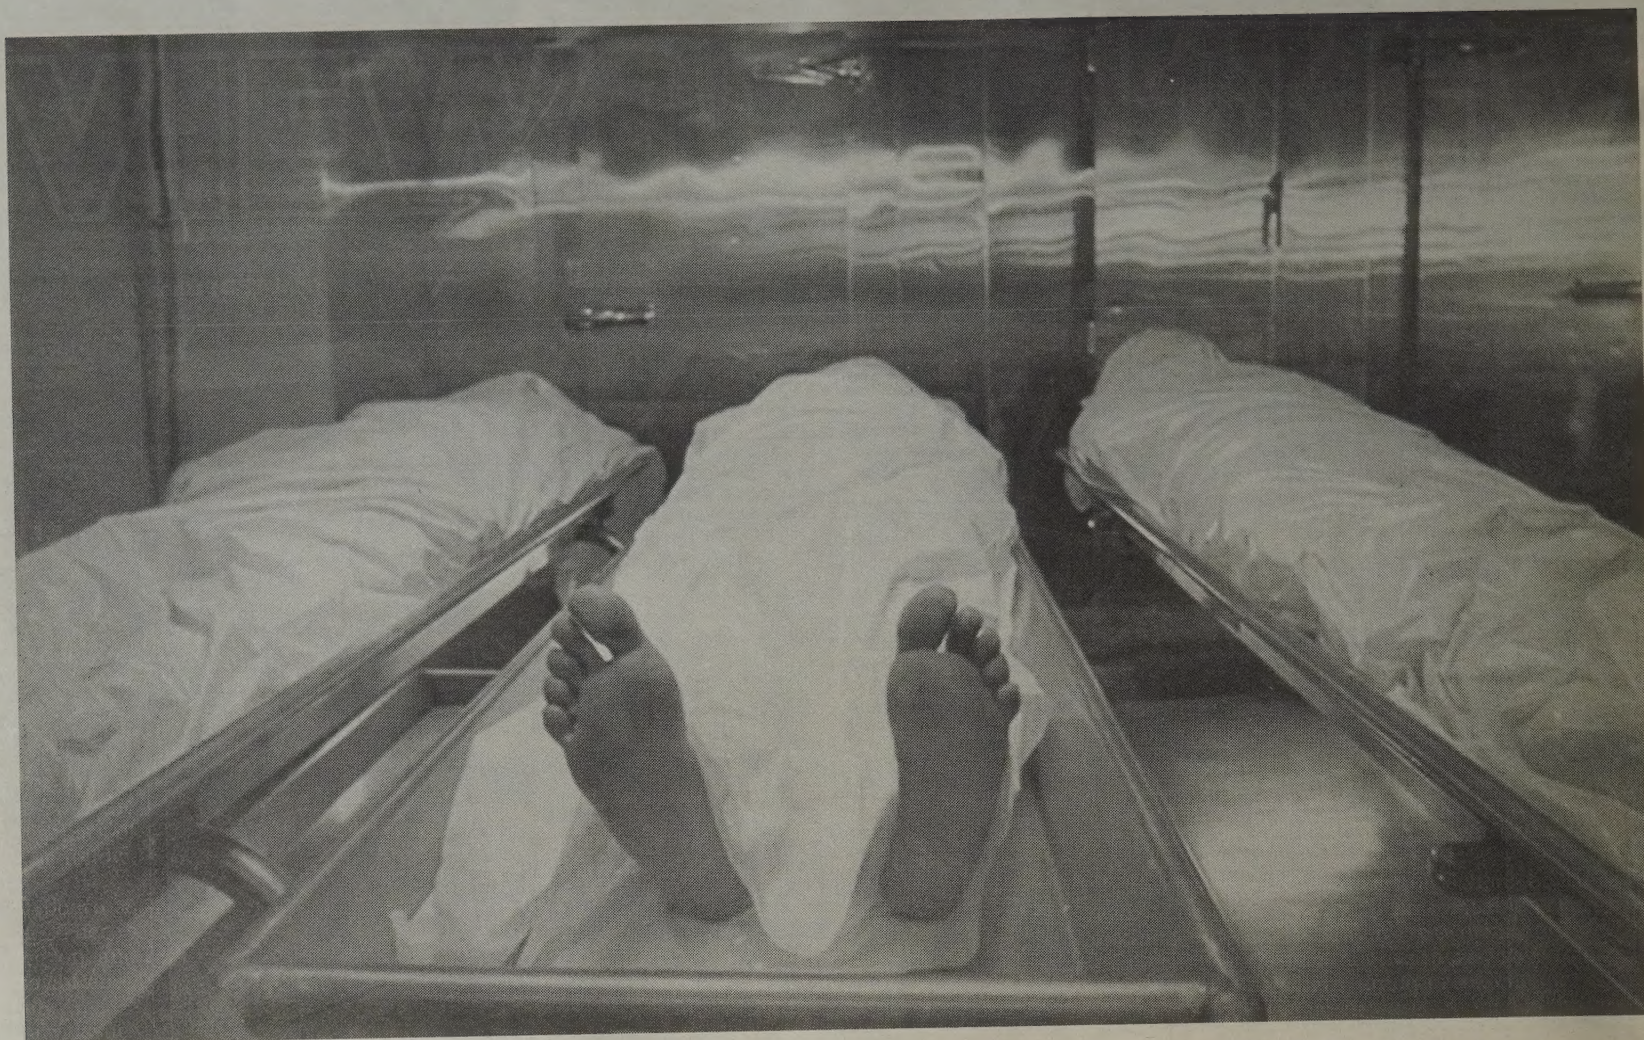

TORONTO - Canadian agriculture ministers say considerable progress has been made toward a formal agreement on a 21st century agricultural policy to contribute to the long-term success of the industry. The announcement, while disagreed upon by Quebec, was made at the conclusion of the federal, provincial and territorial Ministers' meeting in Toronto last week.

Ministers discussed common goals for a national action plan for an agricultural policy framework that was agreed to in principle at their annual conference last June. The framework is composed of five integrated elements - food safety and quality, environment, science, sector renewal and risk management - that will provide an integrated policy approach aimed at branding the industry as the world leader in food safety, innovation and environmental protection.

At the Toronto meeting, ministers received the final Safety Net Evaluation Report from the Federal-Provincial-Territorial Working Group on Safety Nets.

Ministers committed to explore, jointly with stakeholders, new future-oriented directions in risk management, integrated nationally with the other elements of the Agricultural Policy Framework, that will encourage risk management by farmers, provide incentive for participation, reflect the whole business, and comprehensively address risk.

Ministers mapped out the steps necessary in coming months to ensure that at their annual meeting this June they are in a position to move forward with a formal umbrella accord that will shape Canada's long-term agricultural policy.

Over 45,000 Canadians die each year from smoking.

That's more than 45,000 reasons to get tough on tobacco.

45,000 Canadians. That's five times the number of people who die from car accidents, murder, suicides and alcohol abuse combined.

What's even more tragic is every tobacco-related sickness and death could have been prevented. Smoking is Canada's #1 preventable health problem.

Over 45,000 deaths a year is unacceptable. It has to stop.

The Government of Canada is taking strong action to address Canada's #1 preventable public health problem. Over the next five years, we will invest $530 million to reduce smoking in Canada.

Health Canada has a simple, three-part plan:

- Keep young Canadians from starting
- Help more smokers quit
- Raise awareness of the dangers of second-hand smoke

Our plan goes beyond just providing information. It offers real solutions. For real results. And whether you smoke or not, you can be part of the solution.
